

The Security Dilemma in the Aegean

Editors

MUSTAFA AYDIN and KOSTAS IFANTIS

Foreword by Norman Stone

TURKISH-GREEK RELATIONS

The Security Dilemma in the Aegean

Editors

MUSTAFA AYDIN

Ankara University

KOSTAS IFANTIS

University of Athens

Contents

List of Tables	ix
Notes on Contributors	X
Acknowledgements	xvi
List of Abbreviations	xix
Introduction	1
Mustafa Aydın and Kostas Ifantis
Part I: From Conflict to Reconciliation?	-07%
	-
1. Contemporary Turkish-Greek Relations: Constraints and	21
Opportunities
Mustafa Aydın
2. National Perception of the 'Other' and the Persistence	53
of Some Images
Hercules Millas
3. The Greek-Turkish Conflict: Towards Resolution and	67
Reconciliation
Alexis Heraclides
4. Turning a New Page in Turkey's Relations with Greece?	95
The Challenge of Reconciling Vital Interests
Tozum Rahcheli

Part II: Building a Security Regime?

5.	Tension-Reduction and Confidence-Building in the Aegean Thanos P. Dokos	123
6.	The Economic Imperative: Prospects for Trade Integration and Business Cooperation	145
7.	Panagiotis Liargovas Crisis Management in Greek-Turkish Relations: A Political Economy Analysis since 1974 Ozay Mehmet	163
8.	Environmental Security in the Aegean Sea Nesrin Algan	185
	*
Par	t III: Stabilizing Expectations?
9.	Negotiation and Deterrence in Asymmetrical Power Situations: The Turkish-Greek Case S. Gülden Ayman	213
10.	Perception and Rapprochement: Debating a Greek Strategy Towards Turkey Kostas Ifantis	245
11.	Rapprochement on Non-Governmental Level: The Story of the Turkish-Greek Forum Soli Özel	269
	nclusion Istafa Aydın and Kostas Ifantis	291
	oliography dex	303 347

Acknowledgements

Our idea to co-edit a volume on Greek-Turkish relations dates back to the summer of 1998 when we first met each other in the Center for Political Studies at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. A generous USIS Research Fellowship Program on 'US Foreign Policy' enabled us to spend some time discussing Greek-Turkish problems in an open, friendly and relaxed way. The latest round of the Greek-Turkish rapprochement, which started in autumn 1999, provided us with the necessary academic and political impetus to engage more actively in collaborative work in a way that sincere academic communication can be enhanced.

Two years later, the first phase of the project came to fruition when between 7 and 8 December 2000, we organized a two-day workshop in Ankara, under the auspices of the Faculty of Political Science, University of Ankara, on 'Turkish-Greek Relations: Escaping from the Security Dilemma in the Aegean'. The first rough outline for this volume was sketched during that conference meeting, when most of the ideas found in the following pages also emerged. The stimulating presentations and the positive experience of uninhibited closed-session discussions led to attractive interactions that definitely enhanced our understanding – at least. Since then, the process of cooperation with a continuously enlarged group of friends and colleagues accelerated.

Preparing an edited volume is a long, difficult and, most of the time, frustrating task. As is usually the case with a project of this scope, there are many people and organizations to which we owe much. Thanks are due to USIS, both in Athens and in Ankara. Without knowing, they brought us together in 1998. We would also like to extend our gratitude to those colleagues who attended the 2000 Conference and helped to set the context of the project, but were unable to contribute to this volume. Also, to Professor Celal Göle, Dean of the Faculty of Political Science, Ankara University, for his readiness and enthusiasm to host the event; to Ms Emel Üresin, former Liaison Officer for Turkey in NATO Information and Press Office, and Ambassador Ünal Maraşlı, former head of the Strategic Research Center of Turkish Foreign Ministry, for their generous financial support of the conference; and to Çağrı Erhan, Kudret Özersay and the students of the Faculty of Political Science and members of the organizing committee, who so efficiently dealt with the day-to-day organization of the conference.

Financial support from the J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board and the Council for International Exchange of Scholars in Washington, DC was instrumental in bringing this project to completion. A generous grant under the Fulbright Aegean Initiative Program offered us the opportunity to work in the most stimulating environment of the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. Our debt to the amazing people of the Kokkalis Program on southeastern and east central Europe is enormous. We are sincerely grateful to Dimitris Keridis, Elaine Papoulias, Nicholas Yatromanolakis, Mikhala Stein and Nicole Stewart who not only put up with us, but also made us feel welcome.

Mustafa Aydın would like to thank Sergei Konoplyov, Director of the Black Sea Security Program, Harvard University, for his friendship and readiness to make available the wonderful facilities of the Program. There, I was able to concentrate on the last-minute frantic correspondence with the authors. My thanks are also due to Professor Ersin Onulduran, Executive Director, and Gülesen Odabaşoğlu, Turkish Programs Officer, of the Turkish Fulbright Commission in Ankara for their advice and support. Finally, a benevolent grant by the Alexander S. Onassis Public Benefit Foundation facilitated the last-minute updates and finalization of the text.

Kostas Ifantis would like to thank Ms Artemis Zenetou, Executive Director, and Ms Sophia Cousoula, Greek Program Officer, as well as the rest of the staff of the Fulbright Commission in Athens for their support and kindness. Ms Helen Margiou, US Cultural Attaché in Athens as well as Ms Katerina Perentzi and Ms Georgia Galanopoulou also of the Cultural Division of the US Embassy in Athens have always been extremely helpful and supportive. I also wish to thank my colleagues in the Department of Political Science and Public Administration at the University of Athens when they generously allowed me to take a short leave during the spring semester of 2002. Special thanks are due to the then Head of the Department, Professor Kostas Kostis. I am grateful to Panos Lambridis, an excellent doctoral student and good friend, as well as Georgia Astraka and Alexandra Stefanou, both of the Postgraduate Programme on Southeast European Studies, who took very efficient care of most of my Athens duties during my absence. I am also indebted to Professor Theodore Couloumbis for stimulating my thinking on Greek-Turkish relations, first as a teacher and more recently through a jointly taught seminar on Greek foreign policy at the University of Athens. His kind mentorship and commitment to the study of international politics have been and will continue to be formative for years to come. His generous and constant support will always be highly appreciated.

Obviously, our gratitude goes to the friends and colleagues who have contributed to the volume. They dutifully and gracefully responded to our deadline reminders and never-ending queries and requests for revisions, necessitated by the fast-changing landscape of Turkish-Greek relations. We would also like to thank Dr Andrew Mango for his critical and very helpful comments on the final manuscript.

Finally to our wives, Sevim and Agapi; our eternal gratitude for their understanding and support in allowing us to pursue our craft at great sacrifice to their own interests and priorities. To you we dedicate this volume.

> Mustafa Aydın Kostas Ifantis June 2003

"This book is a serious, thoughtful, forward-looking effort to address one of the world's most intractable conflicts. It makes an admirable exploration of paths that might lead to a better future in Greek-Turkish relations."

Steven Miller, Director, International Security Program, John F.
Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University and Editor-in-Chief of International Security (the Journal).

"... arguably one of the best statements on the causes of conflict and the necessity of cooperation between Greece and Turkey. It is a work that will stand as a very powerful pragmatic statement on the causes of peace in the Aegean."

Kevin Featherstone, Eleftherios Venizelos Professor, London School of Economics

"This is an outstanding collection of essays. Taken together, the chapters provide not only a detailed, objective, and informative survey of the Greek–Turkish relationship, but also the various elements of a strategy designed to mitigate, and perhaps even resolve, issues of longstanding contention. The contributors address issues of mutual perception (and misperception), the challenges of reconciling national interests and defusing crises, and tension reduction/confidence building measures. The value of the volume is enhanced by the discussion of the private sector, especially trade and business cooperation, as well as official government-to-government level Greek–Turkish relations."

Robert L. Pfaltzgraff, Jr., President, The Institute for Foreign Policy Analysis, Tufts University

"This important and timely collection of essays provides an excellent analysis of the major issues that have created protracted tensions between Greece and Turkey during the past four decades. Unlike most of the works on the subject, that usually offer either a Greek or a Turkish perspective on the Aegean conflict, Turkish—Greek Relations brings together specialists from both countries who are generally more concerned with better managing the relations between Greece and Turkey than reiterating well-known arguments and claims. The twelve original essays included in the book offer important new information and analysis on a number of issues that usually receive little attention in scholarly discussions of Greek—Turkish relations. As such, I recommend it to scholars interested in the topic, observers of Greek—Turkish relations, and policy-makers in Ankara and Athens."

Prof. Dr. Sabri Sayari, Director, Institute of Turkish Studies, Georgetown University, Washington

The Editors: Mustafa Aydin is Associate Professor of International Relations, Ankara University. Kostas Ifantis is Associate Professor of International Relations at the University of Athens and Research Fellow at the Hellenic Foundation for European and Foreign Policy.

Ismet İnönü, Prime Minister of Turkey and Elesfiros Venizelos, Prime Minister of Greece 06 October 1931 (Third and fourth from left): "The Friendship Years"

Süleyman Demirel, Prime Minister of Turkey, meets with Greek Prime Minister at the border (Keşan) to discuss "Cyprus Problem" (1970s)

Yorgos Papandreou, Foreign Minister of Greece, and Bülent Ecevit, former Prime Minister of Turkey, 20 January 2000

Cover photograph: Abdullah Gül, Foreign Minister of Turkey, and Yorgos Papandreou, Prime Minister of Greece, 30 January 2003

ISBN 0-7146-5272-5

